

(A.O.1)-Essence Rift, The

(Danger level: 1+ {Breach of secrecy})

Containment:

ARTF are to infiltrate and extract the A.O.1 from its monitored location. All officers missioned with extraction of A.O.1 will dress in plain clothes and will converge on A.O.1. The first task of extraction is injecting a precise Global Positioning System (GPS) device into one of the arms of A.O.1 before it has the time to react to the injection and teleport away. All Officers must be fitted with a GPS device in case they accidentally teleport away with A.O.1.

While officers are containing A.O.1, scientist are tasked with creating a force field that will limit the Essence Rift to teleport within.

Description:

An unknown, non-human, human-like creature which has somehow adopted human personality characteristics as to blend into the human population and survive. People whom have interacted with the creature have reported that it is socially awkward; most likely due to its adoption of human personality in which to prevent an excessive amount of social interaction. The creature has the ability to teleport, the source of this attribute is unknown. It appears that it will teleport away if it feels that there is a threat against its existence as in incident (A.O.1)-1.

Notes:

- The creature is constantly monitored by GPS.
- If it were to escape the containment, it would be easily found, but not captured; as if it detects a threat, it will simply teleport away.
- It seems that heavy anesthetic disrupts its ability to teleport.
- Researcher Lux: "Honestly, i think this is the most relaxed of all of the creatures we have here at [Redacted]"

Incidents:

- Incident (A.O.1)-1: The creature has been reported to have teleported into a citizen's home whilst the owner of the home was "using" a prostitute. (A.O.1) was contained within the home as it likely did not detect any threat against its life, right until the homeowner proceeded to point a firearm at A.O.1, which quickly left.
 - The homeowner and sex worker were given a psychological evaluation as to affirm the events as true. They were administered class-A amnestics and placed in such a way to ensure that they did not suspect anything.
 - (Researcher Lux:"Who pays $150 for a prostitute? I had cheaper rates and a better time... [Redacted]")
- Incident (A.O.1)-2: The creature teleported inside a secure Federal Bureau of Investigation facility deep inside the Rocky Mountains. The FBI were notified as soon as we knew that the A.O had teleported. He had managed to gain access to a file, pertaining to criminal evidence of high treason tied to [Redacted], a prominent candidate for the [Data expunged]

United States' National Election. The FBI, under our advice, was ordered to administer a Class-B amnestic by sniper, and was to return the A.O to our custody.

- (Researcher Lux: "I god damn knew it! It was that hag of a woman after all!")
- Incident (A.O.1)-3: The creature had been transported into a SCP Foundation containment chamber, with the cooperation of the Foundation and USACA. We were able to prevent a site wide containment breach, with an expected massive loss of life.
 - The creature is under constant anesthetic as to keep it under control.
 - (Researcher Lux: "So you are saying that this gremlin of a man almost managed to write REDACTED on every weeb, furry, and degenerate he could find in the D-class cells? The man does have some determination, I have to say. Don't support sending someone to a place of possible death but okay. How did he even get ahold of the information to that SCP?")
 - A.O.1 was quickly punished for his actions.
