

(A.O.10) DL:5 {Sentient yet not aggressive}

{(A.O.10-1) in his Containment chamber}

Special Containment Procedures:

(A.O.10-1) is to be placed in a humanoid containment at Site-[51]. Under no other circumstance other than testing, A.O.10-1 is not to be made contact with, with the punishment being the resulting effect. ARTF-15("God's Judgement") must be stationed at Site-[51] just in case of a containment breach. If a containment breach is to occur, please refer to Protocol Exodus.

Description: A.O.10 is a modified (possibly for the use as a mask) shipping box with the dimensions of possibly 15cmx6cmx20cm bearing inscriptions and drawings believed to be made by a sharpie with two holes (possibly eyes) poked out. At the time of recovery, a hat was attached to the box.

This A.O was discovered by a C.I.A operative during his trip to the U.K, he had found it in a crypt underneath [Redacted]. Since he was suspicious of this box, he had transferred A.O.10 with its hat to the USACA.

A.O.10's Anomalous property activates when a sentient creature wears A.O.10. From now on, anyone or anything that wears A.O.10 is to be classified as (A.O.10-1). (A.O.10-1) is the person wearing A.O.10, however, their movements seem to be unusual, as if they were being controlled. From these observations, we have deduced that A.O.10 is sentient. Upon further testing, we have found out that A.O.10 can understand the English language and can speak it. A.O.10-1 would speak with an English accent of the Victorian Era. A.O.10-1's manner was somewhat gentleman like, being compliant with researchers. Further testing also shows that there is no possible way to remove the A.O from the victim.

It has requested that its chamber be appropriate to the standard style of the Victorian era with a desktop, this was approved by Dr.Lux.

The reason this Anomalous Object has a DL of 5 is due to Incident 10-A

Incident 10-A

When A.O.10-1 was being tested on, he reacted to Senior researcher Dillard being, as A.O.10-1 put it, “un-chivalrous” and picked up the researcher and [Redacted] his spine. The actual action in question was Dr.Dillard pulling a prank of sorts from the female senior research Gilliam. She explains that it was apart of the series of “pranks” they would pull on each other. From this, A.O.10-1 was given {Euclid} class status and Dr. Gilliam was given Class-B amnestics and was reassigned to a different A.O.

Note:

As of right now, more information is being gathered on this A.O.
